Disaster Preparation

There are many ways you can prepare for a disaster. One of the most important is having an evacuation plan. In the case of an earthquake, fire or flood you may have to leave your house quickly. You should have a safe evacuation area that you can get to. You should practice your evacuation procedure on a regular basis. It's also important to make sure that your home insurance is up to date.

Another important skill to have is knowledge of basic medical treatment, sometimes called First Aid. There are many courses you can take in order to learn basic medical skills such as treating wounds, injuries or heart attacks. This knowledge could be very useful in many different situations. Always keep a first aid kit in your home.

After a disaster it is important to stay in contact with your family and friends. A disaster can be a very traumatic experience. You will need help and support for a long time after experiencing a disaster. You may suffer from stress, fear or anger. It is important to speak to your family and friends and in time you will recover.
