3 DIALOGUE

ダイアログ

Directions: First repeat after your tutor and then practice each role.

Serge: So how are things with the project so far?Miles : We just reached our final milestone. We have finished designing the line and have been given the green light to create the prototypes.Serge: Excellent. Are there any risks we need to watch out for at this point?Miles : Well, we have created a list of risks and we plan to discuss them this afternoon. We will create a contingency plan for each then.Serge: Great. When do we plan to unveil the new line to the company staff?Miles : Hmm... we are looking at finishing the prototypes on Friday, hoping to do testing this weekend to make sure everything is good. So probably on Monday.Serge: Great, anything else I should know?Miles : I think that covers it all for now.

Meeting – Asking for Updates on Actions.

Directions: First repeat after your tutor and then read aloud again by yourself.

Where do we stand on ...?

How is the project moving along?

Could you update me on the status of ...?

What has changed since our last meeting?

Any news regarding...?

I'd like you to bring me up to date on...

Is there anything worth discussing about the project development?

6 ACTIVITY

練習

Activity 1: What is a “contingency plan?” What’s the best way to prepare for the worst? What steps should be taken to create an effective contingency plan? Have you ever had to rely on one? If so, talk about your experience. If no, talk about what you would do if you needed to use one.

Activity 2: Your tutor is a product designer who you have hired to design a new Smartphone for your company. It’s been a while since you have talked, ask for an update about the following items:

- * finish date for the design
- * date of prototype production
- * estimated date of formal production and selling of your Smartphone
- * about any possible setbacks and their contingency plans for each
